

AgriFuture is coming! As many of you know, the opportunities for agriculture over the next few decades is immense. While the outlook of agriculture is bright and full of possibilities, we still face many of the same challenges we always have like environmental issues, consistent profitability now, high cost of entry into agriculture, and the intergenerational transfer of land. These challenges and others have been around for a long time. There are no easy answers to these questions but producers around the country continue to work and innovate to solve them.

To help address these issues and find ways for agriculture to reach this potential, the Wyoming Department of Agriculture, Wyoming Rural Development Council and other cooperating agencies are bringing producers, leaders, students and others together for AgriFuture. This three day conference will provide a platform for discussion, education, brainstorming and innovation to help agriculture.

AgriFuture will be held October 12-14 in Laramie, WY. Come join us and listen to dynamic and engaging speakers, network with others around the region, and find innovative ways to meet the challenges we all face. For more information, contact Mary Randolph at mary.randolph@wyo.gov or 307-777-6430. A brochure with more information on speakers, agenda and registration information will be posted soon so check back! You can also look to the page from last year to see some of the exciting things that happened in Evanston and more information on AgriFuture 2011!

AgriFuture Facebook

AgriFuture Registration Brochure

Register online here

AgriFuture College Student Scholarship Application available

AgriFuture Wyoming Ag Educator/Producer Scholarship Application available